

The Woodturners Association of Western Australia Inc.

Eneabba Accolade

Jim Cameron 2022

WAWA is strong, vibrant, well organized and well equipped to deal with the challenges of a not-for-profit voluntary organization due to leadership and skills of members such as Jim Cameron. Jim has contributed in many ways to WAWA that is unseen by the members who benefit daily from his visions and actions. I, as President and a member of the Committee of Management manage WAWA using a set of documents such as Rules, guidelines and handbooks which under pin our strategic plan. The process of formulating, writing and implementing these documents is not a glamorous or quick task, it takes dedication and skill to pull together often disparate sources and conflicting ideas. Jim undertook this process over several years and we have a very good frame work of governance to work with due to his efforts.

Jim's professional background in education and love of woodturning have led to him being a strong advocate for our competition activities and he has supported my own desire in involving the country-based groups in our WeWs competitions. He often attended with Rudi Goh and myself, travelling and doing demonstrations for these small country groups. He also has been instrumental in the drive to transfer skills from our better turners to new members through the STEP program. All these activities are the hallmarks of a member who is very strongly motivated to promote and support woodturning as an art and craft. Jim has given outstanding service of an individual, to the Association's work and well-being. It's with pleasure that I award Jim the Eneabba Accolade in recognition of his efforts.
